Background of the Webinar

The world is facing multifarious challenges in the lives of its people from pandemics, climate change and natural disasters.

Protection of our environment is the responsibility of every citizen of India in which the forestry professionals have an extra role to play. We can undoubtedly claim that the conservation of the environment can be done flawlessly by a trained forester alone. To meet the challenges of the changing climate and environment, the foresters must be trained. In this context, College of Forestry, Kerala Agricultural University, Thrissur is organizing a webinar series on "Forestry and Environment Education in India" to keep the foresters updated about the recent developments in the sectors of forestry education, environment conservation, policies of the governments on environment, etc. Professionals, academicians, officials, researchers working in various parts of the world will be delivering talks on their area of expertise. College of Forestry, KAU will host the webinars in Google Meet for one hour duration every week
